The Listening Club: Chamber Music for Strings works the same way, except participants listen to music! Each week, one week in advance, participants receive a link to a YouTube performance to listen to. Then the class assembles on Zoom for an online virtual class where instructor Lawrence Eckerling offers insights, with examples, and facilitates a discussion of the assigned works. This class is a great way to become acquainted with great string quartet literature, including some chamber music with both strings and piano, and share insights about these monumental works.
